

A Connecticut That Works for All of Us

OUR VISION: Our goal is a Connecticut that works for all people in every segment of our society, from the disadvantaged to the very wealthy, from the employed and underemployed to those who can not work, from the smallest businesses to the largest corporations, from the most rural communities to the largest cities and from corner to corner in our state.

Connecticut has been and can continue to be a place of opportunity, health, happiness and service to others. It must be a place where individual talents and skills contribute to a better life for families, communities and the entire state.

We will work toward an even more just Connecticut because all people need the same things ... a home and viability- from birth to elder years, job security, adequate wages, access to health care, quality early childhood and public education and personal safety. These needs remain constant in every just society.

Furthermore, access to a just society must not be impacted by socio-economic background, skin color, ethnic origin, gender or by anxiety about the future because of decisions made by the government or by large corporations.

The opportunities and protections that help our state to thrive are the cornerstones of our plans for the future. Our policies will focus on the economic well-being of the many. We propose wage and benefit improvements, increased access to health care, investment in and protection of our environment, strengthening of strong public schools- from pre-school to 12th grade in every community, a readily accessible system of public higher education, improvements to our infrastructure and transportations facilities, viable cities and unique position of Connecticut as the entrance point into New England.
