

August 6, 2020

Chambers Tied With Button

Findings from a poll of likely 2020 General Election voters in Texas's 112th State House District

To: Interested Parties

From: Greenberg Quinlan Rosner

A recent survey conducted in Texas's 112th State House District finds Democrat Brandy Chambers essentially tied with Republican State Representative Angie Chen Button, 48 – 46 percent, in a rematch from 2018.<sup>1</sup> This district is growing increasingly hostile to the Republican brand in the wake of Donald Trump. After Hillary Clinton narrowly carried this district by 1 point in 2016, Beto O'Rourke defeated Ted Cruz here by more than 9 points. Now, Joe Biden leads Trump decisively, 57 – 36 percent.

Button's support slides after balanced positive and negative messages, allowing Chambers to finish the survey leading outside the margin of error, 48 – 43 percent.

Figure 1: Vote Progression

The election is still a ways off, but Brandy Chambers is well-positioned to defeat Angie Chen Button with an aggressive and well-funded campaign.

<sup>1</sup> GQR conducted a survey among 401 likely 2020 General Election voters in Texas's 112th State House District from July 6-9, 2020. The margin of error is +/- 4.9 percent. The survey was conducted on landline (41 percent) and cell phones (59 percent).